Whale of a crusade for class

DUBLIN — Whales have been befriended by a group of California High School students who have joined a national crusade aimed at saving the mammals from extinction by Japanese and Russian fishermen. Crusaders contend these two countries lack regulations and are thoughtlessly killing whales to obtain by-products for perfumes, dog food, transmission fluid, fertilizer, shoe polish and other items. They have heard reports that Russians use whale blubber to feed mink and sable raised on fur farms. The Japan Whaling Association states they use whales primarily for much-needed food.

Student interest in the whale's plight was sparked by Bill Pence. He teaches Oceanography to a class of 50 at California High School. His lectures and slide presentations impressed his class and drew other student's attention to the problem.

Now, the goal of all the students involved is to inform the public of the whale's predicament.

To further this cause, two students not enrolled in Pence's class wrote 30 letters to state, federal and local officials. They are Diane McPherson and Jenny Prentice.

So far, they have received 15 answers from various assemblymen, congressmen and senators. Representatives of Governor Brown and President Carter have replied in the name of those two high officials.

All of the various officials said they supported the student's Save The Whale crusade. They encouraged the students to keep spreading the word; especially to legislators. They informed the crusaders there were state and federal laws, acts and bills enforcing whale killing controls.

The student group is proposing to have a lecture and slide presentation for the public during the second week in April.

Further information about the whale crisis can be obtained at a display students have set up at the Dublin Public Library. It will be there until March 17. Pence said he would be willing to discuss the problem with anyone calling him at the high school, 828-9311.

The students have gone on whale sighting expeditions off the California coast. Some of them were inspired to write poems about what they saw. Others took and developed their own photographs. Denell Nannini took several pictures of the whales sounding. All of these works are included in the library display along with a petition the public is invited to sign to Save The Whale.

Sighting the big ones

The Salmon Queen III was one of the boats that carried a group of California High School students 35 miles out in the Pacific Ocean allowing them to get a close look at whales. Denell Nannini took the picture of a whale breaching — or diving. Pence said the whales usually sound to a depth of 160 feet and stay submerged from four to seven minutes. He said whales paid no attention to the boats as long as there was no sudden noise made by engines accelerating too fast. The boats trailed the whales letting the mammals set the pace — which is usually 4 knots.

"That's about the speed a man walks," Pence said.

Kidnap suspect bailed, faces hearing Weds.

LIVERMORE — James Saxby, accused last week of kidnaping a two year old child he said was found wandering in a field south of here, was released Friday on $1,000 bail after pleading not guilty to the charges in municipal court.

Saxby, 48, is charged with keeping Justin Bezis, of 1969 So. Livermore Ave., at his 5107 Norma Way home for eight hours Monday while hundreds of searchers combed the area for the boy.

Judge Al Lewis reduced the defendant's bail from $10,000 to $1,000 after noting Saxby had "strong community ties" and a "good record."

However, the judge said he was "concerned about the defendant's mental attitude," and said he would reduce Saxby's bail "with the understanding that he will be in contact with the Alameda County pre-trial release department."

Greg Hicks, a pre-trial specialist for the county's probation department, told The Times he presented an evaluation of Saxby to Judge Lewis prior to the court appearance.

Saxby will appear in court 9 a.m. Wednesday to schedule a preliminary hearing in the case.

The defendant's wife Ruth Saxby was threatened with ouster from the courtroom for several outbursts.

When Saxby was ushered into the courtroom with other prisoners from Santa Rita prison, he sat cross legged, finger to his temple and eyes looking downward, waiting quietly for his turn.

James Saxby

When the judge called his name, Mrs. Saxby shot out of her chair in the audience and said, "I'm his wife and I understood he would be able to talk to the public defender before he appeared in court."

Lewis summoned public defender Cole A. Powell, but before he arrived Mrs. Saxby rose again demanding the public defender and telling Judge Lewis, "I want you to understand he is to enter an innocent plea."

Bailiff J. M. Davis leaned over the counter and told her to be quiet.

Judge Lewis told the bailiff, "If there are any more outbursts from that lady remove her."

Amador negotiations

Schools' chief tells issues

The Amador Valley Joint High School District administration's position on binding arbitration, prior to a resumption of talks Friday night, and that of the teacher negotiating team left both firmly entrenched and far apart.

There seemed little chance of "movement" on this key question, based on the most recent restatements of their respective stands.

The administration position on binding arbitration of grievances, as well as salary, and the lesser points of agency shop and hours, were reviewed in an interview Friday with Superintendent Bruce Newlin.

Newlin said the teacher unit gesture last Tuesday, as outlined by president Dave Woolworth, is untenable.

Woolworth, in a ringing speech to board members and about 80 teachers gathered at Foothill High School, said "We would be willing to accept your plan for binding arbitration the first year if you will accept ours for the second year."

The statement assumes a two-year contract. The only other district in the Valley still to act on a multi-year contract proposal is San Ramon, which was presented with a three-year pact proposal by their teacher unit negotiating team.

... down to basics

Newlin said Woolworth's gesture would "give" the district just a few more months (the remainder of the 1976-77 contract year to June 30) before it would come under binding arbitration, starting July 1, 1977.

Newlin expressed wariness of a teacher strike within the next few days, especially if talks scheduled over the weekend end in a deadlock or are not continued.

... untenable gesture

"I think we're down to a couple of basic issues and I don't know how long you can talk on them if there's no agreement," Newlin averred.

He said teachers at each school had maintained "silent vigils" for a

Del Valle tour stirs supervisor

LIVERMORE — Climbing over broken glass and scrambling up windswept hills, Alameda County Supervisor Valeria Raymond and Livermore Mayor Helen Tirsell made a three hour inspection yesterday of the county's Del Valle Sanitarium property off Arroyo Road.

Doomed to be burned for county fire practice three years ago the scenic 89-acre spread high in the hills near the Veterans Hospital is now swarming with activity.

Workers from Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch, a crisis home which occupies part of the property, arranged the tour for the political leaders.

Long a supporter of Buenas Vidas, Supervisor Raymond appeared impressed with the dramatic progress being made at the long abandoned site.

She gladdened the heart of Ruth Shattuck, who operates the youth home, with fresh suggestions for funding possibilities and encouraged the ranch's many volunteers with expressions of appreciation.

Discovered two weeks ago in one of the buildings was a metal time capsule containing 16 photos, six

Request to hike garbage rates

PLEASANTON — Pleasanton Garbage Service would like a 36 per cent rate increase, Acting City Manager Alan Campbell has informed the city council.

The council will review the request at its meeting tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers and refer it back to staff for study. A public hearing is expected after the staff is finished with the request.

The 36 per cent rate increase would translate into an increase from the current $3.09 single can rate to $4.22. For two cans the price would rise from $4.92 to $6.72 and the loose yard container rate would be hiked from $3.47 to $4.74.

William Hirst, attorney for Pleasanton Garbage Service, said the requested increase is in line with the formula by which the city does business with the quasi-utility.

Right now the firm's one can service is 50 cents cheaper than the average in the Eastbay and 95 cents cheaper than the average of the top half of the 17 ranked cities, said

Hirst. If the desired increase is granted, the rate would be 63 cents higher than the average of all cities and 18 cents higher than the average of the top half of the ranking. That's because Pleasanton Garbage Service is the only one of the 17 which has a garbage transfer station, an additional expense.

As other garbage collection firms are required to add transfer stations in accord with the Alameda County Solid Waste Management Committee's plan, their costs will go up, too, said Hirst.

Mori works for handicapped

Special legislation affecting motor vehicle license fees for the handicapped has been introduced by the Valley's Assemblyman, Floyd Mori.

The Pleasanton Democrat noted that the physically handicapped can spend up to the entire cost of a car just modifying the car so they can use it. The handicapped should not have to pay additional vehicle fees for these modifications, as they must now, said Mori.

Pleasanton building starts

Forty-seven building permits were issued in Pleasanton for single family homes last month. Their total value was estimated at $1,809,000 and they brought in fee revenues of $7,427.

One permit was issued for a commercial building with an estimated assessed valuation of $193,200. Eleven swimming pool permits and 27 additions, alterations and repairs also were issued.

Council to reorganize

The Pleasanton City Council will reorganize itself tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

Mayor Robert Philcox was not available for comment Friday, but a published press report indicated he is interested in serving a second consecutive term as mayor. Council member William Herlihy, who thrice was unsuccessful in a bid for the mayor's seat said he "is interested in being mayor," but would make no further comment.

Vice-mayor Joyce LeClaire was on vacation last week and unavailable for comment.

Accident victims improve

Two youths injured March 4 in a Foothill Road auto accident that claimed the lives of two Pleasanton residents are reported in good condition in Valley Memorial Hospital.

Eric Michael Scott, 16, of Flagstone Drive sustained serious injuries when the car he was driving hit an oak tree on Foothill Road north of Bernal Avenue. He is now in good condition with multiple fractures.

Traci Sharver, 16, of Muirwood Drive, remains in good condition with fractures and cuts. She suffered a concussion as a result of the accident, a spokesperson said Friday.

Tired traveler?

Residents pledged contributions to the individual walkers for the march of Dimes. Following the 20-mile walk through Pleasanton and Livermore a rock concert by "Tykus" was staged at the fairgrounds where the march began and ended.

Amador deadlock ends talk

In a strong effort towards settlement the Amador Valley Joint Union High School Board of Trustees met at lengthy negotiations Friday night.

The board and Amador Valley Secondary Education Association (AVSEA) plowed through proposals and counter proposals.

AVSEA did not change its demands for full binding arbitration. The board, on the other hand, has moved from an initial position of advisory arbitration to binding arbitration of a limited nature. The board's final offer included the following: binding arbitration.

"Binding arbitration shall be utilized when the board determines that the relief sought would not have a substantial impact on the operation of the district. The grievance and or his/her representative may, upon request, appear before the board in executive session to state his/her reasons as to why the relief sought will not have a substantial impact on the operation of the district."

The salary schedule increase of 4 per cent plus increased health and welfare costs .68 per cent plus increased retirement costs of .80 per cent and step and column movement of 3.74 per cent. This total compensation package will cost the district 9.22 per cent.

The board of trustees feels that this is a reasonable offer and that it has done its share in trying to be fair to the community, the children and the staff. At approximately 1:45 a.m. Saturday negotiations ceased and no further meetings were scheduled.

At the same time trustees hammered through negotiations with the classified staff. Agency shop and grievability of layoffs were the unresolved issues for that session.

Shortly after midnight a deadlock was reached and negotiations are expected to continue although no future meeting date was set.

This was a news release from school district management regarding the prolonged negotiations.)

EL GAMBUSINO

Okay, there are a lot of Mexican Restaurants around. So why should you search out for some new place with a screwy name that sounds like an Italian gambling hall and is hidden away on some obscure street in Concord with a singularly plain entrance and facade?

Here's why - I'm presenting a different approach with my restaurant. Those who have found me tell me that it is some of the finest Mexican food that they have ever eaten. We offer a real value for your dining-out dollar. Our average transaction per person is about $5.75 (includes beverage and tax), and we are enjoying a high percentage of repeat business.

I have designed the menu to allow you to pick and choose exactly what you want - virtually total substitution. I think a hearty salad complements the soft textures of our menu, so I have installed an extensive salad bar with lots of extra crunchy goodies. Nobody is serving the famous soups of Mexico, so I am. You serve yourself from an old Spork stove. For desert the combination dinners include "sopapilla," a sweet puffy fried bread served with spun honey and butter - a light sweet finish to a satisfying meal.

The atmosphere is mellow, warm and romantic (shorts, cut-offs and tank tops are definitely out of place). The theme recalls historic abandoned mines of The Old West, ghost towns and the lonely prospector (El Gambusino). Heavy beam ceilings, rough hewn old barnwood, stained glass and oil-burning lamps along with fresh flowers, patchwork cloths, and soft romantic Latin music are the setting for a refreshing, relaxing change of pace.

We feature a wine Margarita that is so popular that our customers are calling us for the recipe. It is offered in a 17-1/2 oz. stemmed "swimming pool." If you don't like it - no charge. Few have taken advantage of the offer, although some have complained about the size... too big!

Come on over and try us, we're in the Meadow Lane Center, about half-way between Monument and Willow Pass, next to a large vacant lot.

Supt. Newlin talks issues

half - hour before school several days this past week.

The district has said it is prepared to continue classes should a strike occur. Amador has a substitute list of approximately 100 and can draw upon the sub lists of 16 East Bay districts.

On the subject of the security guards, placed on district campuses two weeks ago, Newlin said they were still a possibility for this week-end and the future, depending on the directions negotiations go.

On the other negotiation points still separating the two sides, Newlin said the district salary offer of 4 per cent is just one per cent below that of the teachers. He said there was a "tentative agreement" on the agency shop issue.

"The association has backed off (on the latter issue)," Newlin claimed. "We're all waiting for the outcome of the Supreme Court decision in the case of the Detroit teacher. It may be a moot point if the Court says 'yes, it's legal to fire a teacher if he doesn't pay agency dues.'"

Asked about the makeup of administration members at the negotiating table, and why the district couldn't proceed without Keith Breon in a predominant role, Newlin replied "The dynamics of the table indicate a necessity for someone such as Keith to be present."

In reference to the situation in the Pleasanton district, Newlin said the fact-finding panel of Robert Leventhal, Jim Sutton (of the California Teachers Association) and Breon is scheduled to reconvene in the middle of next week.

The report of the fact - finder, Leventhal, was originally expected this past week.

Findings of a fact - finder, however, are advisory in nature.

newspapers and tour documents relating to the history of "Del Valle Preventorium for Children" as it was called in 1923 when the Alameda County Tuberculosis Association dedicated the first section.

Photos and drawings show the huge well built hospital and staff houses surrounded by roads and gardens.

"Beautifully built," Raymond sighed as she admired the shiny chestnut paneling, beamed ceilings and brick fireplaces gracing many of the rooms.

"But look at vandalism!" Whole strips of molding had been torn out, paneling and carved banisters had been carried off by trespassers during the 20 years the property had lain idle.

Currently only a few of the buildings are in use. One house has been restored and provides long term and crisis foster care for boys and girls aged 12 to 18.

Nearby is a one room building being used for a Livermore Unified School District alternative school for seventh and eighth graders.

Youths from The Peoples Church are working on restoring two pleasant two-story buildings to house young adults and counselors for a church-related project.

Saxby released on bail

Powell walked into the courtroom, entered the not guilty plea, noted Saxby's good eight - year working record at Veterans' Hospital and honorable discharge from the U.S. Army, and asked for the reduction of bail with a supervised release.

Judge Lewis granted the requests, noting "This is a somewhat unusual case, to say the least."

Powell indicated he would be filing motions for discovery that would allow him to examine evidence in possession by the sheriff's department.

After his arrest, Saxby told police he found Justin wandering in a field 100 - 150 feet from the road and fence along Wente Road when the defendant was on his way to work.

He reportedly parked, walked back, jumped the fence and picked up the infant, admitting he made no contact with nearby houses, according to police reports.

The child was left with Mrs. Saxby while the defendant went to work, the report said. On his return at 11:30 p.m., he saw the huge search being mounted by the sheriff's department, reportedly walked up to searcher Ronald Smith and asked if they were looking for a small boy.

He reportedly drove Smith to his house and turned the boy over to him.

Arlene D. Armantrout, 2268 Marina Ave., told police she saw a man in a hospital type uniform matching Saxby's description carrying the infant in his arms.

Police reports indicate she saw the infant "crying and clutching a baby bottle," and that the man was holding the child in a "peculiar manner, as if he was holding the infant to stop him from struggling."

During interrogation, Sheriff's Sgt. G. D. Seher asked Saxby if he kidnapped the child. The reply was "No, I did not," according to the police reports.

Saxby and his wife have an adopted boy.

Move over, Angie, this cop's for real!

Move over, Angie Dickinson — you've got tough competition. She's a five-foot-eight, willowy brunette glowing with health, whose blue eyes are calm and direct. Has Hollywood snapped her up yet? Nope — but the Livermore Police Department has.

The only woman police officer with the LPD, Kathi Sekany has been on the force five years. She first became interested in police work through her mother, a policewoman in San Mateo, who worked with runaways and battered children.

"I thought about nursing and all kinds of careers," recalls Kathi, "but after getting divorced I started helping my mother at halfway houses and with library research, getting more interested all the time in the direction police work is going."

Realizing that much police work can be preventive — "like dentistry" Kathi decided to get more involved. That meant a move to Livermore, where she joined the police department's reserves. When the department opened five female positions, the attractive mother of two was accepted as a full-time police officer.

The dispiriting custodial shifts Kathi worked her first three years at the Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center "still offered a lot to learn," she says. The job involved guarding women inmates, processing their papers and reviewing work records.

"It was depressing," sighs Kathi. "Over 75 per cent of the women were in on drug related charges, and since most of them were between 18 and 28, it was more like babysitting a younger sister with disciplinary problems."

The policewoman soon learned that "there's nothing you can do for the girls because by 18 all their survival and fighting instincts are patternized. And they aren't rehabilitated in the Santa Rita environment."

Because her law enforcement ambitions were aimed at doing more than custodial work, Kathi applied for a transfer. Her next job, transporting prisoners to and from court, introduced her to Wendy Yoshimura, Patty Hearst's one-time roommate who is awaiting sentencing for illegal possession of weapons and explosives.

"Since I was her bodyguard, we talked a lot," says Kathi. "She was a model inmate — never demanded or complained. She was shaken when the other inmates would rip off her cigarettes — she was very quick to analyze the problems out at Santa Rita."

When a training class for women on the street was introduced to the LPD, Kathi discovered she enjoyed the public contact. Based in San Lorenzo for two months, the policewoman recalls "being much closer to the problems." With the help of two training officers, Kathi learned how to handle situations ranging from burglaries to drug trafficking.

Policewoman Kathi Sekany enjoys working on the street, even though "it's like fighting a tidal wave sometimes."

"The concept that a woman can't defend herself or kill is bogus," states Kathi, who believes that women are trained from youth to shrink and "wait for a knight on a white charger to save her."

Women interested in police work today will find equal pay and stature, points out Officer Sekany, but she doubts that many can handle "the heavy responsibility" that comes with the job.

"The instant fights and riots at Santa Rita are what's helped me the most on the street," claims Kathi. "Girls aren't trained from youth to react as quickly mentally and physically as boys. All girls have to do are a few jumping jacks in school — how are we supposed to build stamina?"

The policewoman advises girls interested in following a crime fighting career to start testing their abilities now by taking martial arts and getting involved in taxing sports. "You can still be totally feminine," she laughs, somehow managing to look chic in a tie and heavy boots.

Although Kathi admits being a police officer "sometimes feels like you're working against a tidal wave," the frustration pays off when "when you realize you're doing something right for somebody."

Whether it's a solved burglary — "you feel as though you've helped 100 people, like a domino" — or helping put an unhappy youth's life back together — "when they make it over the hill, you feel like the past five years have been worth it" — Kathi knows police work is for her.

What does the future hold for Police Officer Kathi Sekany? Probably a lot of speaking engagements, if the Livermore chapter of the American Business Women's Association has anything to do with it! After hearing Kathi's keynote address at one of their recent meetings, the members are enthusiastically endorsing her to other groups.

But her job comes first, and if that someday involves "getting into investigation or specializing in juveniles, that would be fine."

Prove your prowess as a hostess!

Cleo Seamans of Livermore knows that one of the most exquisite delights for a hostess must surely be the pleasure of setting a beautiful table before her guests.

Place setting, centerpiece and other appointments are carefully orchestrated on a theme. The element of surprise augments the pleasure.

If you feel you're a mistress of the fine art of setting a table, or a master, the Amador - Livermore Valley Historical Society challenges you to match your talent against that of other valley experts. Enter your most elegant, most original or most prized table setting in competition March 26 at the Springtown auditorium in Livermore.

The cash stipends for the best entries total $200, but the satisfaction is half the reward. Call Edna Hagemann at 447-3964 or Josephine Haas at 828-6596 for details.

Mrs. Seamans, who has established a reputation for fine taste in winning two previous awards for her place settings, set a sample table with antique Nippon china, embroidered Chinese linen, plum blossoms in a brass bowl, and a novel Saka bottle with a tiny bird that sings when the liquid is poured.

Eagles initiate

Livermore Aerie of Eagles will celebrate St. Patrick's feast with a party Tuesday, March 15 at Eagles Hall, commencing with initiation at 8:15 p.m.

Members will down green beer and corned beef sandwiches, while being serenaded by Larry Riera who will sing Irish tunes. Those not wearing the appropriate "green" will be fined, with fines donated to the Eagles' heart and cancer funds.

Upward, onward

A new consciousness-raising group for women will form tomorrow afternoon at the L.A.R.P.D. office under the leadership of Ann Smith. The group, sponsored by Tri-Valley N.O.W. (National Organization for Women), will meet from 3 to 5 p.m. each Monday for eight to ten weeks.

A second group forms Wednesday, March 16 at Shannon Community Center in Dublin led by Ilse Dunean. Weekly meetings are planned from 10 a.m. to noon. Time and location of a third group to convene in April, possibly in the evening, will be announced at a later date.

Consciousness-raising provides an opportunity for women to share experiences in a safe, supportive atmosphere. It is not a group therapy session, but can lead to a heightened sense of self-awareness, self-esteem and personal growth.

Child care will be available for all meetings, if 24-hour notice is given. For information contact Ms. Smith at 443-4641 or Susan Schock at 846-7713.

Pipelines

In that great saga of "sewer waste discharge" one thing is clear: We are never going to find a single answer that satisfies everyone; we will be lucky to find one that pleases a bare majority.

We will also be fortunate to emerge with something that, as of 1977, frees this Valley from heavy penalties, while also leaving us free to accomplish a minimum of residential, commercial and industrial development. Economic necessity and common sense dictate that we do at least that much.

It will not be done with grandiose schemes of total recycling and reclamation. Not within the next decade; not within the technology and the money now available to us. Those are challenges which state and federal governments must respond to, before ever they can be considered at the local level.

All we can consider, right now, is all that the regional wisdom gives us to consider. The game plan now is discharge ... carrying salts from many inland areas of the East Bay into the bay itself, and thence to the Pacific Ocean. "There is no bigger, no cheaper way of reclaiming fresh water from salt water than in the depth and spread of an ocean," one expert points out.

To consider any other method of "reclamation" is beyond us; most assuredly it is well beyond the political decision - making of these several Valley communities.

What we can do is to respond to the immediate responsibility of our waste discharge. The Valley Pipeline and the East Bay Interceptor would meet that responsibility. It would also allow us to respond, legally, to the minimal claims of landowners and developers who can otherwise take us to court, again, and assess us with still more court - ordered penalties.

There will doubtless be better, bolder, more popular ways of treating sewer waste waters in the decades ahead. For this decade, and at least the next, there is just one way. The participating members of LAVWMA should move decisively to build that 15.6 mgd outfall line, with as few strings and futuristic conditions as possible.

That is not the very best way to go. It is however the only way left to us. Let's get it done with.

The mayor

One of the Monday night agenda items for both the Livermore and Pleasanton city council sessions is "Council Reorganization." That means the selection of a new mayor and vice mayor; and that in turn promises all kinds of byplay before the decision is made.

It has in fact been underway for days and even months ... council members pressuring other council members ... people making phone calls ... lots of guessing at cocktail parties and in the press. It is all great fun.

But to the five men and women who must guide their city through some rough waters in the years ahead, and some long Monday night cruises, selection of a mayor is an important — perhaps the most important — step in assuring progress through a maze of municipal work.

The mayor of the city (or the president of a community services district board) is, first and foremost, chairperson of that board. For cities such as Livermore and Pleasanton, that is just about all the mayor is. The other duties, honors, attentions are largely ceremonial, and on any day subject to curtailment or reversal by a majority vote of the other council members.

Being mayor is most certainly a tribute, but it is an honor bestowed by the mayor's peers, indicating the respect of those he or she works with, or the office would never be offered in the first place.

The rest of us should keep that in mind, as Mayor Tirsell presents herself to the Livermore council and Mayor Philcox submits to a vote of the Pleasanton council, each seeking second terms. We think both have been effective mayors, but our vote doesn't count, and neither does yours, not in this contest.

A productive city council must function as a team, and that requires a fair, effective leader. And that is what Monday night's "reorganization" is all about.

Schools and taxes

The California State Board of Equalization is out with a review of 1976-77 property tax levies, and it will come as no surprise that this one source continues to grow in its percentage of support for all governmental costs.

Education demands the largest slice of our tax pie ... averaging 53 cents of every property tax dollar raised in the state; schools in Alameda County took exactly half of our property tax revenue last year; in Contra Costa the slice was 51 cents.

Schools in San Mateo are the costliest of Bay Area education, requiring 64 cents of each local tax dollar.

County government takes 24 cents of that tax dollar in Alameda, 23 cents in Contra Costa County. Local government — Cities, recreation, service districts — take the rest.

That table also reflects a levelling off of local tax rates throughout the state (due, we suspect, to state legislation "freezing" such tax levies) but it is also evident that assessments are continuing to climb. One way or another, they're gonna getcha.

We don't know what all this means other than it seems worthwhile every now and then to advise those of you paying the bill just where your money is going.

The week in retrospect

Vote statements

Candidates running for public office can put down almost anything they please on "statement of qualification" forms sent out to voters.

A check with the Alameda County Registrar of Voters office in Oakland this past week brought forth the conclusions that a candidate, in this instance a school board aspirant, can put down anything he or she pleases as long as it is 1) not over 200 words, 2) makes no reference to party affiliation, and 3) includes no vulgar or obscene references.

Thus, the form received by registered voters in the mail is not so much a statement of qualifications as it is a position paper.

While most candidates, at least those running for school boards, stay within the intent of the wording at the top of the form — statement of qualifications — some venture far afield and describe their stand on certain issues pertinent to the office they seek.

The county registrar of voters does not attempt to check the accuracy of job titles listed by candidates, age, degrees or honors received. Obviously, for the candidate who is untruthful, there is no check.

However, the law does state (without adding what sanctions there might be) that "no candidate shall assume a description that will mislead the voter."

Submission of statements for inclusion on forms going out to voters is entirely up to the individual candidate. Cost for having a statement included varies according to the number of voters receiving the materials. For example, in a district with the number of registered voters Murray has (8,864), the cost to the candidate would be about $200. At least, two of the candidates we spoke to indicated they had received cost estimates in that area.

It is interesting to note that only one Murray candidate, Donald Biddle (who won an impressive victory), filed a statement of qualifications for distribution with the sample ballots.

The individual school district governing board has the option of picking up the fee for the statements by candidates or having them each pay. However, only one of 17 districts in Alameda County is believed to assume that cost — Amador Valley Joint High School District.

And by some ironic coincidence, the four candidates in this past week's Amador school board election did not submit statements of qualifications.

Thus, on the statements going to voters in the Amador and Murray districts, only one statement appeared. That of Donald Biddle in the Murray district. Biddle, a newcomer to school district elections, led a field of five in balloting.

There are other ironies involved in the statements, tied primarily to costs, bilingual printing provisions and distribution. We'll deal with those in a later column.

Letters to the Times

Wasted food

Editor, The Times:

The enclosed picture of asparagus tells a story all its own. This asparagus was found dumped in the garbage at a local grocery store. At the time, the price of this vegetable was 89 cents a pound. This asparagus weighed out to five pounds, a total of $4.45 to the consumer. Multiply this waste by all the stores in the valley, and the consumer can see why grocery prices continue to soar. This was only one store in one afternoon.

Instead of throwing things like this away when the prices are so high, why can't the stores run a special or donate it to families in the low and fixed income brackets. It's a shame when so many of our elderly have to pinch and scrape to buy food that perfectly good food is thrown in the garbage everyday, every day.

Instead of accepting weekly the rising prices, the consumers should speak out on disgraceful practices such as this. The voice of the minority becomes the voices of the majority only when they are willing to speak.

(Mrs.) Carolyn Strobbridge Pleasanton

Teachers docked

Editor, The Times:

Open letter to taxpayers and parents of the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District.

We would like to take this opportunity to inform the taxpayers and parents of another incident in which due process was not followed by the administration of the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District. This has led to the present mistrust and lack of respect between the teachers and the district administration. This is further proof that teachers need binding arbitration.

On March 9, nine teachers received letters of notification of salary deduction because of unauthorized leave of absence on March 4. Letters were put in personnel files before the teachers were given the opportunity to sign them or comment thereon. This is in direct violation of the law of due process. This is the second instance of such violation. Every teacher that received a letter was at their teaching position on the date specified in the letter. Obviously a gross error has been made or this is another attempt at harassment of teachers by the district administration.

Prado's supporters

Editor, The Times:

During my campaign for re-election, my family and I had the opportunity to visit some 1500 homes. I would like to thank the Livermore citizens who opened their hearts and homes to my family. Our children gained a valuable experience and I learned some of the concerns which you have about our educational system.

On behalf of the many people who visited your homes during my campaign, I would like to thank you for the courtesy that was extended to them. In addition, my gratitude goes to all who helped: The precinct walkers, the coffee hostesses, the campaign supporters, Linda Gallas for the use of Proctor's, and my committee for their time and effort put into the campaign.

Finally, I would like to thank the local newspapers for their endorsement, and the local voters for their support. I shall strive to represent the needs of our community, students, and staff.

LIGHTER TIMES

Ever since a judge in Texas ruled that it's all right to televise an execution, I have been all for it. Television has been giving us such ersatz violence (except for World War II) over the years that it's about time we get to see the real thing. The American public is obviously ready for it, popcorn and beer in hand.

The format should be like the sports superstars competition. You would line up America's top 10 criminals and have them go up against America's finest in capital punishment — New York's electric chair, California's gas chamber, Utah's firing squad, Las Vegas's Wayne Newton Show.

I can see it now. Hi, this is Howard Gazelle and it's a beautiful day to try to beat the Grim Reaper here at San Quentin next to the beautiful blue bay near the city by the Golden Gate. You are looking at a scene from last week's competition, convicted thrill killer Clyde Frazier, who defied the electric chair at Sing Sing by thinking positive thoughts. Watch him short circuit the prison's electric system at this point where he remembers his mother's love. A stroke of genius for this psycho-athlete.

Today we'll see convicted mass murderer Dwight Sigafos face the cyanide pellet in the little green room at San Quentin. We don't know which strategy he'll take — the 11th hour reprieve or his yoga breath trick where he holds his breath for an hour and fakes death. Remember, he has a string of five 11th hour reprieves going for him: can he make it a sixth?

Sounds far out? I bet if a network could get a major sponsor for it, you'd be seeing it every week, live and just as direct.

Round the town

There is this acquaintance of mine, Peter Pacific, who observes: "Whenever I grow weary of the real world I turn to National Geographic."

Seeing life in Ektacolor is certainly uplifting, I had to agree. Even the world's most troubled places come out in three-dimensional splendor on Geographic's pages.

"Yes," Peter Pacific said, "and I've never seen a country in National Geographic that I couldn't love."

And no potentate or poor person either, for that matter. A Paraguayan peon looks much the same as a prince when you view both through full-color Ektacrome slides.

"If I ever get to Paraguay," Pacific advised me, "I would head straight for the slums of Asuncion because I want to share the warm excitement of their lives, see the splendor of their native rags ... all in full color, of course."

Peter Pacific's views came to mind the other night while I was watching "The Volga," a tv special produced by the people of National Geographic. Sure enough, the color film was marvelous, the people were all bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, the cities and hamlets and dancing natives along the banks of that mighty Russian river were all as one with the NG world.

Are there no unhappy people living along the Volga? Does not a single dissident exist in the 2000-mile stretch of that stream? Peter had the answer.

"If President Carter were to invite the Russian press to do a full-color treatment of the Mississippi River, do you think for one minute he would let them take pictures of black students battling the National Guard?"

I saw his point. And I see National Geographic's point, too. The world needs a good salesman. Somebody to accentuate the positive. Giving us a picture of life as a bowl of cherries, alongside a tall, cool glass of something native.

"When I want a happy view of just my own world, I read Sunset Magazine," Peter Pacific advised me. "Sunset is to the western states what Geographic is to the western world. The major difference is that Sunset reveals prices, but rarely uncovers anybody above the waist."

Recently, Sunset did a great job of uncovering the "Back Roads of California." For $5.95 you can learn of the splendor of a trip that never knows a freeway, rarely sees even a gas station.

"You familiar with that route from Livermore to Concord?" Peter Pacific asks. "No ... Interstate 680 ... the other one ... through the hills and past the wildflowers. Magnificent!" Peter finally admitted he had never really taken that trip himself, "except on the pages of Sunset's new book."

Mines Road also gets handsome treatment from Sunset's writers, suggesting to Peter that "we send a copy to each member of the Alameda County Planning Commission ... give them another view of our rural residential land-use plan."

In much the same way (only under different titles ... at $5.95 per title) the Lane Publishing Co. provides fantastic tours of Alaska ... Anchorage in the twilight ... the Alaskan pipeline by dawn's early light ... all in glorious color, of course.

"But you'll never see a single picture of an Alaskan mosquito in Sunset," Peter points out. "And when they appear in National Geographic, mosquitoes are always pictured as scientific wonders ... more to be loved than swatted."

Is Peter Pacific suggesting that it would be a better world if left to the publishers of Sunset Magazine and National Geographic?

"Better and prettier," Peter contends. "Take their writers, for instance. They travel half-fare on the luxury liners, stay at the best resort hotels as guests of the management ... you'll never meet contented folks like that in our State Department!" But wouldn't we then be in danger of seeing the world as one big luxury cruise?

"Well, let me put it this way," Peter Pacific replied. "Remember that trouble India was having a year or so ago? ... people in rebellion ... Indira jailed thousands, and then cut loose with an atomic explosion just to scare hell out of the rest of us. But that same year National Geographic came out with a spread on Indian customs and costumes that was a thing of beauty. Even the untouchables looked great! Not an unhappy Indian on a single page."

But, I protested, I have seen pictures of nuclear explosions in National Geographic.

"Yes, and weren't they beautiful!" Peter Pacific exclaimed. "That lovely mushroom cloud unfolding against an azure sky ... a man-made explosion of color to rival the morning sun ..."

Somebody call Dr. Kissinger. I think my friend Peter has got ektacoloritis.

Taxing

This is about a lady who wants to pay her taxes — wants to file early as a matter of fact, but the Internal Revenue Service won't let her.

An exaggeration, perhaps, but it sums up the frustration of Livermore's Lili Gordon.

Mrs. Gordon has been computing her own tax statement for 28 years, ever since she came to the United States from Russia as a "G.I. Bride."

Never has she run into stone walls like this, however. Back in those halcyon days when Mr. Gordon was a soldier, making small change, Lili could perform a few simple mathematical exercises and whip, snap, mail off the short IRS form way before the April 15 deadline.

Regrettably, as the years piled up, so did the Gordons' income. Along with prosperity came more and more tax forms to complete. Which is o.k. with Lili. She says she's good with figures and actually enjoys computing her statement for the government. This year, however, it's different. The Gordons need supplementary forms to itemize property transactions conducted in the past 12 months. Problem is obtaining forms, the ones with exotic names like B-540 and D-1541. You don't get them through the mail. Post office doesn't have them either, according to Mrs. Gordon. She should know after literally hours of fruitless search.

But let her tell the tale. "I called Internal Revenue Service at 8 a.m. one morning in Oakland and waited one hour and 20 minutes to get through. Sometimes the phone was busy, sometimes they just turned the switch off. Finally I talked to a lady who said she would send the forms in two weeks."

"Then I called for California tax forms and it took one hour and 15 minutes to get through. I have to wait three weeks for those forms."

"I want to send income taxes," snorts Mrs. Gordon. "I'm not playing games. I need an early start and I don't like to receive forms three weeks from now. What would happen if I had waited three more weeks to call for forms? I'd never get taxes done in time."

"I called you because I was concerned, but how many other people are there who get mad, but don't bother to call."

Perhaps not many who are willing to tackle the bureaucratic mumbo-jumbo of an itemized tax return. Most of us simply turn the task over to an accountant, or a brother-in-law who used to be a bookkeeper.

For all the Mrs. Gordons, however, there is partial relief. Supplementary California income tax forms are available in Assemblyman Floyd Mori's Pleasanton office, 1811 Santa Rita Road, suite 228.

Federal forms are another matter. A check with Congressman Pete Stark's office in Livermore confirmed Lili Gordon's frustration. IRS must mail special forms to the taxpayer upon request. Prepare for the delays.

"Maybe with a little foresight we could have the forms here next year," says a Stark aide in Livermore. "It's a good idea."

Not timely enough, however, to rescue frustrated do-it-yourself taxpayers. Delays may force them to pay bookkeepers, who charge anywhere from $20 up into the hundreds of dollars.

Lili Gordon remains steadfast, though. She's done her own taxes for three decades and she's not about to let the bureaucrats grind her down.

"I do my own taxes," she says emphatically; "and I find it very inconvenient when people don't cooperate — especially when we pay so much in taxes every year."

"They're taking all the fun out of my mathematical equations."

Dr. Lamb

Hormone lack causes ills.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am completely confused and hoping you can help me. The doctor I go to for high blood pressure has put me on medicine to lower it. I go to another doctor for checkups after hysterectomy surgery and he put me on Premarin. I was really feeling great until the blood pressure doctor took me off Premarin saying it was keeping weight on that he was trying to get me to take off. I called the doctor who prescribed Premarin and he says I need it but stop taking it and see.

The results are I am having terrible hot flashes, wet sweats in the night and feel dragged out. Also I have gained 15 pounds. Is there an answer?

DEAR READER — In cases like this the patient usually benefits if the two doctors discuss the problem with each other. Busy days often make this difficult but it is the ideal.

Taking you off Premarin did not help you lose weight. On the contrary you gained weight which is bad for your blood pressure.

The estrogen in your medicine is particularly useful in stopping the hot flashes and sweating of menopause. You don't need large doses usually to achieve this effect. Possibly your doctor could give you a small amount of just estrogen or a synthetic estrogen to accomplish this for you.

Because of changes in metabolism during the menopause, whether it is induced by surgery or occurs naturally, it is difficult for some women to avoid gaining weight. The body metabolism and often one's physical activity slows down.

You must get on a weight control program and I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which you can use to control your calories and still get a balanced diet. Stick to it with religious zeal and you will lose weight.

You could help yourself with an exercise program. Develop a daily walking program. Walk a total of three miles a day. If you weigh around 130 pounds that will use an additional 150 calories a day or the equivalent of over 15 pounds of body fat a year. The exercise plus the diet should help you solve your problem.

Others who want this diet plan can send 50 cents for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Most people who have high blood pressure can help themselves a great deal by eliminating any extra body fat they have. Certainly 15 pounds could make a great deal of difference.

The diet plan I am sending is the basis for a permanent well balanced varied diet. Once you have reached your goal you can add other foods to the basic plan as long as you don't add so many calories for your level of activity that you start to gain weight again. The diet trains you to be able to stay slim rather than spend a lifetime of "feast or famine" and it is better for your health.

I would like to suggest too that you restrict your salt at least by not adding salt to your cooking. Estrogen tends to cause salt, and hence water retention, which your blood pressure doctor is trying to avoid. But that 15 pound weight gain is not water and you can eliminate the salt and water retention with medicines but not the calories stored as fat.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DO EARTHWORMS COME OUT AFTER A RAIN?"

A. PROBABLY EARTHWORMS COME TO THE SURFACE AFTER A HEAVY RAIN TO AVOID BEING DROWNED WHEN THEIR BURROWS ARE FILLED WITH WATER.

Earthworms are long, crawling creatures that live in the ground. They live in little tunnels which they make for themselves.

Earthworms stay underground most of the time. But after a long, hard rain, you may see large numbers of them crawling about on the surface of the ground.

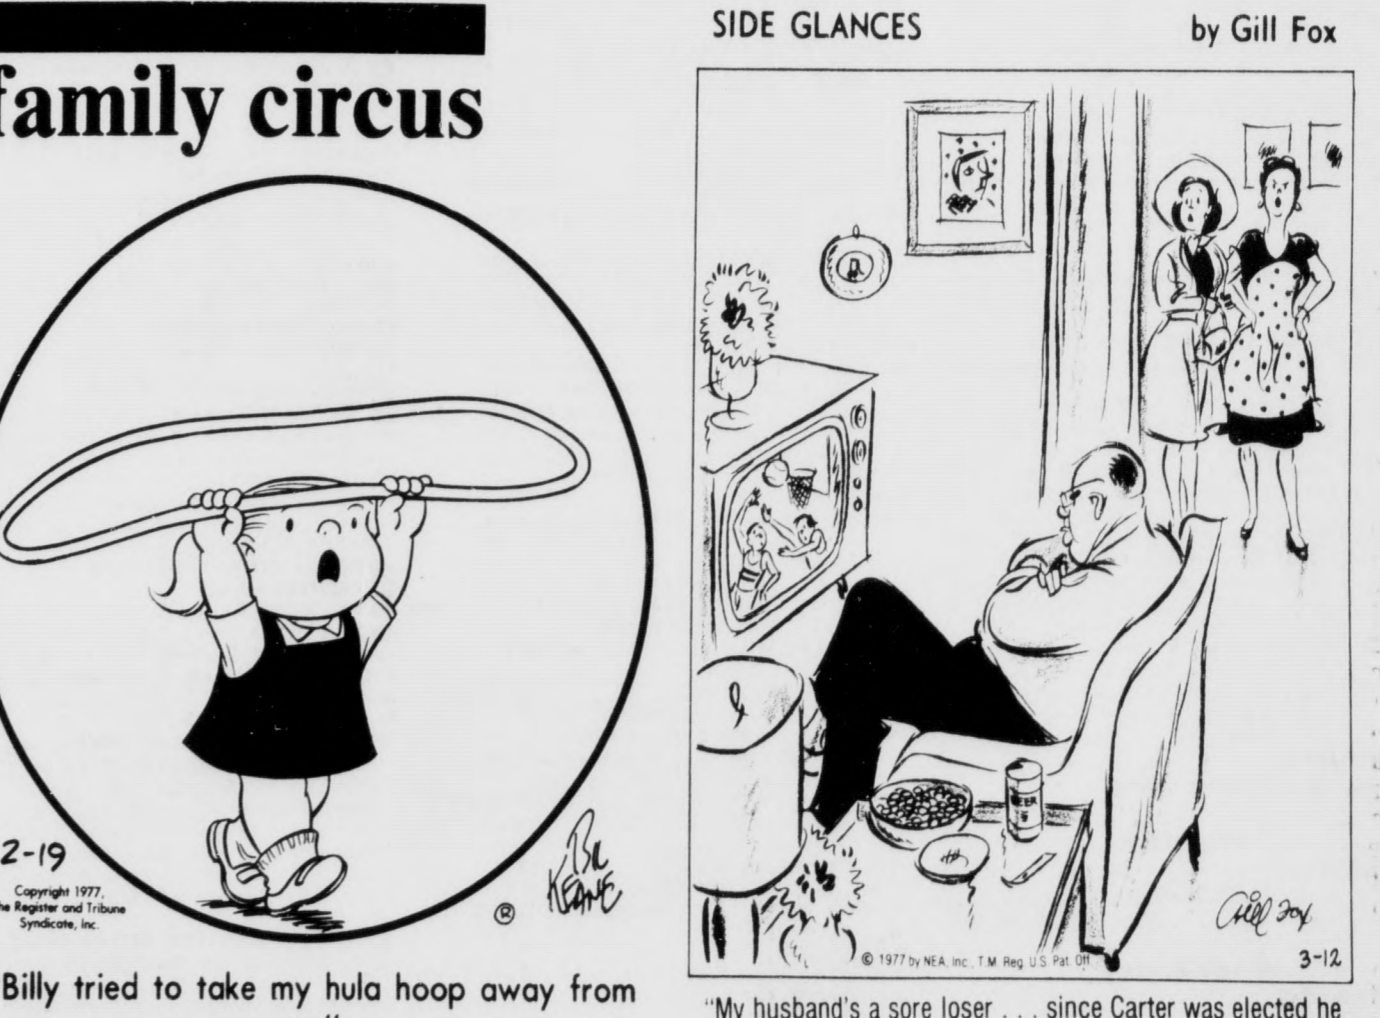

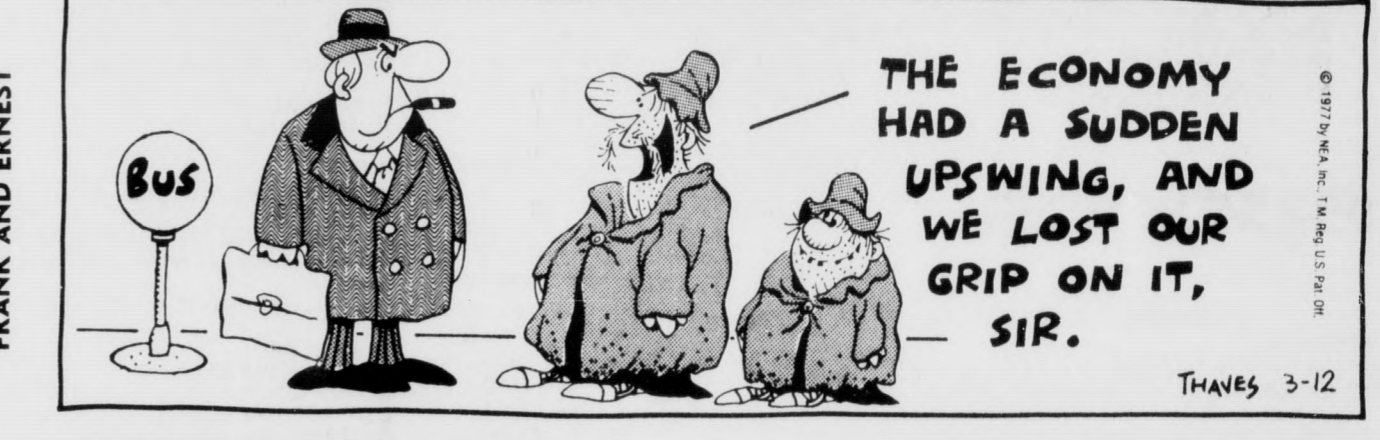

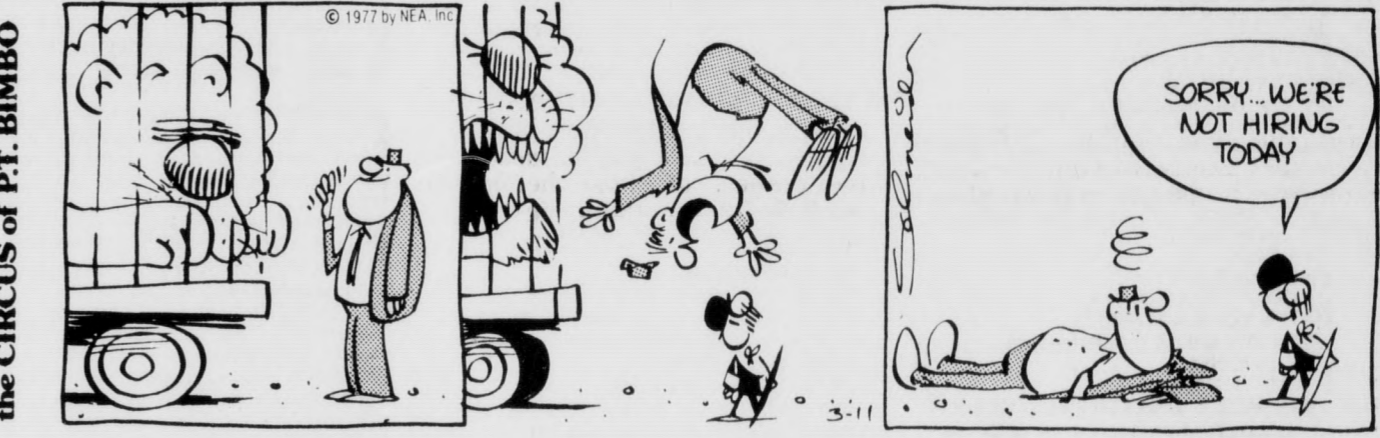

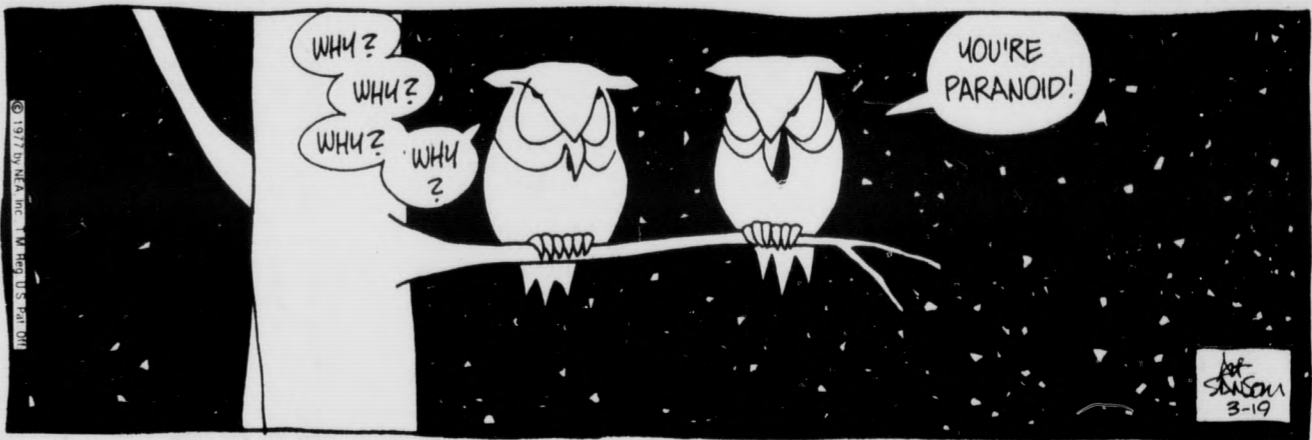

It is not fully understood why earthworms come out after a rain. But scientists think that it is probably because the rain water floods their burrows, and they must come to the surface to avoid being drowned.

Earthworms cannot live long in sunlight, and once in the open they become very weak and usually die. An earthworm's burrow may be a foot or more deep. The animal digs through the ground by eating the soil in its path and digesting the dead plant matter it may contain.

Earthworms usually come out at night to search for bits of leaves and grass to eat and to get rid of the earth they have swallowed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some of your companions will not share interests akin to yours today. Don't push them in the wrong direction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You lack faith in your ideas today. You can be easily dissuaded by anyone who finds even the smallest flaws in your brainstorms.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Outmoded methods will not do the job for you today. Be imaginative. Try new twists for old problems.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best you sleep on important business decisions. To be impulsive won't be doing your bank account a favor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although you will be willing to help another today, you may do so in a manner that will cause this person to feel indebted and resentful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't pick someone apart today who isn't there to defend himself. Say nothing unless it's complimentary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Look after the welfare of your family before trying to satisfy the needs of outsiders today. Family has priority.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do things today without expecting favors in return. You'll be disappointed if you try to trade one good deed for another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though you're rather shrewd in business today, you could encounter someone who is more than a match for you. Be careful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Enjoy your pals for what they are and keep everything on the light side today. Don't attempt to involve them in your ambitious plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something advantageous careerwise could pop up unexpectedly today. You'll have to move quickly to make the most of it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) To be on the safe side today, avoid doing business with persons you know little about. Someone unethical could try to take advantage of you.

March 13, 1977

Some exciting surprises may be in store for you this year. Through an unusual chain of events things could happen to lift your outlook to new levels. (Are you a Pisces? By Oswald & James Jacoby
If today's hand had been played in a duplicate game some East players would have made four hearts, some would have gone down one at five, others would have defended unsuccessfully against four spades and a few might have beaten five-spade contracts.

A Canadian reader sent us this hand with a complaint about his partner's defense. He said the game was rubber bridge and did not ask us to comment on the bidding so we are dodging that very interesting subject and sticking to the play.

Our reader explains that he played his lowest heart, the six, on his partner's king at trick one and that his partner ignored his request to shift, whereupon South ruffed the second heart, knocked out the ace of trumps, eventually got rid of his six of clubs on North's fourth diamond and made his doubled contract.

We agree with East that his partner should have shifted to a club, but we still have to blame East for what happened. Why let your partner do what you can do? East should have put the ace of hearts on his partner's king and led the club back himself.

Altamont starts next week

TRACY — Altamont Speedway opens the doors to the 1977 auto racing season Sunday afternoon, March 20, as the ultra-fast half-mile oval hosts the Northern Auto Racing Club (NARC) sprinters in the first of a four race Spring Sprint Classic.

The modern racing plant, built in 1966 at a cost of more than $300,000, is located seven miles west of Tracy and 11 miles east of Livermore on Midway Road using the Grantline exit off Interstate 580.

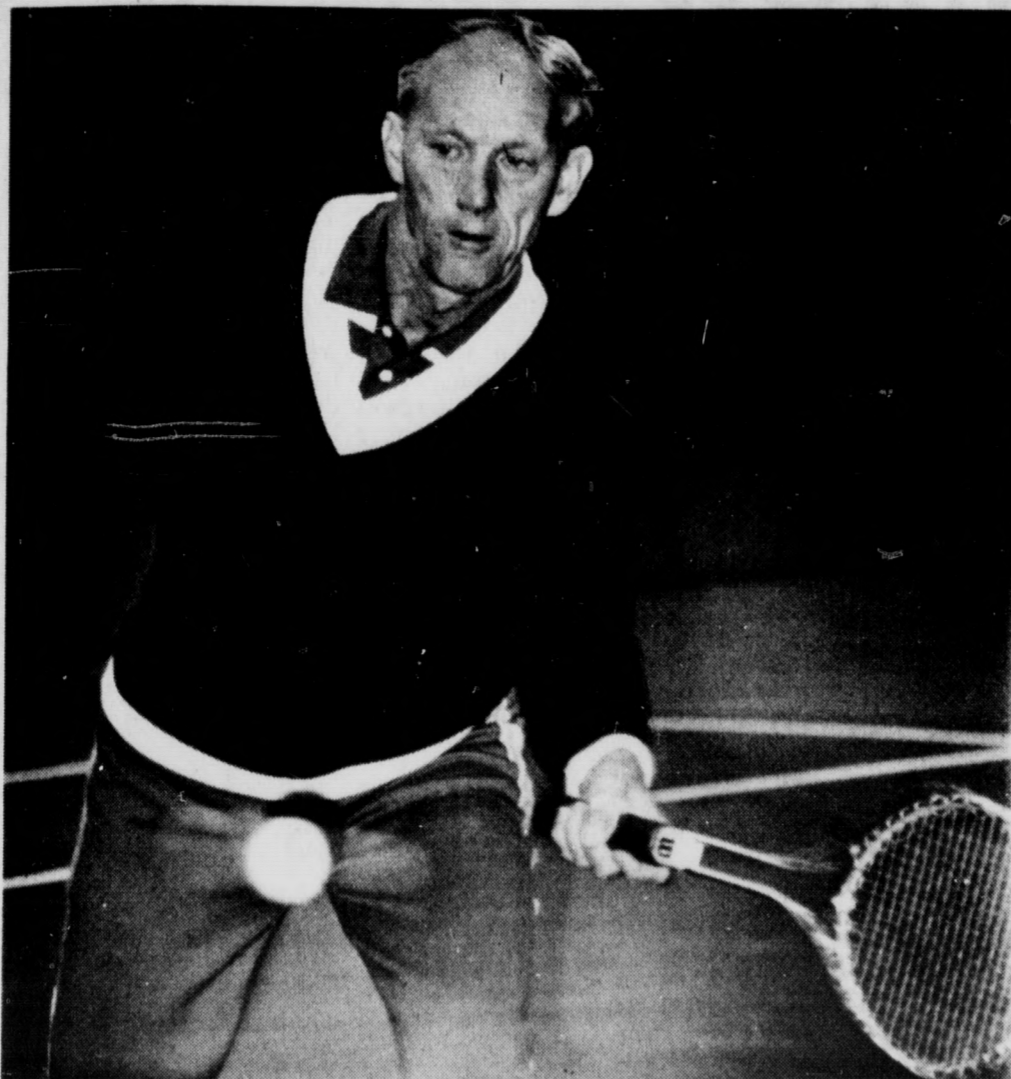

In addition to the March 20 opener, the powerful sprint cars will compete March 27 and April 17 and 24 at Altamont — all Sunday afternoon programs. The four race Spring Sprint Classic, a first annual affair, will conclude with the crowning of series champion based on total points.

The sprinters are enjoying a new wave of popularity in Northern California as last season they set new attendance marks at their home track, the Calistoga Fairgrounds, and managed a record season championship payoff. The switch to sprint car racing is apparent as former 1975 San Jose super modified champion, Nick Rescino of San Francisco is expected to debut a brand new car for the Altamont Spring Classic.

Joining the popular Rescino, who holds the all-time one-lap qualifying mark at Altamont, is the 1976 NARC titlist, Johnny Anderson of Sacramento. Anderson will be making his third outing in the new Brandy and Glapey sprinter also from Sacramento. Other top contenders include Concord's Ron Horton, Galt's Leroy Van Connet, Sacramento's Gary Patterson and San Jose's Don Melvin.

Qualifying for Sunday's first race of the sprint series is set for noon with racing at 1:30 p.m.

Jr. hockey

TV teams split

E.J. Rankin's hat trick went to waste as Sacramento's finesse overcame a lack of depth and a harder-hitting Tri-Valley team, 4-3, in the first game of the Mite AA Northern California Junior Ice Hockey play-offs at Dublin Iceland Friday evening.

The game was the first of six involving Dublin teams this weekend and gives Sacto a one-goal lead in the two-game home and home series which concludes in the capital today.

In PeeWee action Tri-Valley edged Berkeley, 6-5 on the losers' rink.

Shawn Picotte and Billy Land each scored three times for the winners. Tri-Valley had 30 shots on goal and Berkeley 19.

Land scored the winning goal with 1:57 left in the final period.

Sacramento kept the pressure on early with 10 shots in the first period and 13 more in the second as only some timely checking by Dyno-Mite defenseman Gaylin Barrow stalled the visitors' attack till six minutes were gone.

Kevin Boeh followed up a stick-saved by T-V goalkeeper Bobby Long and knocked it through his legs for the first Sacto goal, Jason Collins and Peter Morgera somehow being credited with assists on the play.

Sacramento goalie Piper Berge was knocked to the ice in the early going and was obviously shaky for most of the period, but fortunately for the visitors, her teammates were able to limit Tri-Valley to only four shots.

But it took the Dubliners only five minutes of the second period to tie the game for an all-too-brief 25 seconds that would prove to be as close as they would get to the lead.

Rankin picked the puck out of face-off in T-V's defensive zone and chased it the length of the rink before plopping it unassisted into the left corner of the cage.

However, less than half a minute later, Todd Bunce swiped the puck from a Tri-Valley defender and flipped it off Long's catching glove to give Sacto the lead for keeps.

Sacramento got a pair of insurance goals from Collins to offset Rankin's other net-finders, one off a Barrow assist.

Despite the loss, there were a few bright spots for Tri-Valley, not facing an insurmountable task today by any means.

Long's 27 saves were of every variety; stick, both gloves, grabs and traps — including a sliding kick save that would have seemed beyond most eight-year-olds.

In addition to Barrow's police work inside the Tri-Valley blue line, center Danny Merrick came up with an occasional spectacular forecheck while Donovan Padgett played well at right wing and Brian Schaeffer just missed with a couple of shots.

The visitors had to make do with just eight players, including a pair of girls.

As mentioned, Piper Berge was in goal for Sacramento and stopped all but one of 11 shots during a furious third period rally that could have put Tri-Valley ahead. Meanwhile, Michelle Peterson alternated between a starting defensive spot and an occasional stint on the front line.

And, who says little girls aren't tough enough for hockey? Or, more to the point, guess who went to the penalty box twice in the third period? Peterson didn't spend the entire 45 minutes setting up T-V's power play, though, as she picked up an assist on Collins' second goal.

While the little kids travel to Sacramento for their decisive game today, Tri-Valley's Junior will play 7:55 and the PeeWees will compete at 7 p.m., also at Iceland.

Face Portland

'Quakes play in Livermore

The San Jose Earthquakes play the first of three Bay Area exhibition games this afternoon at Robertson Park in Livermore.

The Portland Timbers will provide the opposition in the 2 p.m. game, a benefit for District III youth soccer.

The Timbers will have three new faces in the lineup in an effort to improve upon their fourth place finish in the Western Division of the North American Soccer League one year ago.

Midfielder Stewart Scullion and forward Clyde Best were both acquired from Tampa Bay late in the 1975 Soccer Bowl, played at Spartan Stadium. Brown was the goalkeeper for Portland during that 2-0 loss.

"Scullion's always moving, running with the ball, he's a lot like Johnny Moore," says Earthquake public relations director Tom Mertens, drawing a comparison to the little San Jose favorite who moved up to the 'Quakes from the Tri-Valley soccer club.

In addition, a man Earthquake fans love to hate, Graham Day, will be in evidence. Day, it will be remembered, saluted a Spartan Stadium sellout crowd with the universal cuss word for the hard of hearing.

Not to leave out Archie Roobostoff, the former 'Quake who departed last season to San Diego amidst a chorus of sniping. To make things worse, Archie knocked in the only goal of a Jaws win over the home-state 'Quakes.

"We owe him something," says Moore.

The Earthquakes won a 0-0 game with Los Angeles last weekend in La Mirada when goalkeeper Mike Hewitt stopped four Aztec breakaway attempts during the new tie - breaker and Pepe Fernandez and Mark Liveric meshed their shots.

Moore, who says the game at Livermore "has always been an excellent" contest, hopes for a similar result today.

"We want people to see the tie - breaker, so they can see how they like it," says Moore of the new format, which puts the shooter 35 yards away with five seconds to do what he will, rather than the old 12-yard free throw of the past.

Despite the win over LA, San Jose is by no means at its peak.

"Our players were puffing," Moore recalls. "We're not in as good shape as we thought."

Nor is the 'Quake roster complete.

John Rowlands will not arrive for at least two weeks, while Tony Simoes, involved with his duties in the Portuguese parliament, will not appear 'til the 28th.

Julie Vee's Belgian team is doing very well — with Vee contributing several goals — and may have its season prolonged.

In addition, the 'Quakes are still trying to land English defender Alec Lindsay.

San Jose resolved an intra-league dispute with Dallas over his services, but Lindsay is up for transfer in Europe; with the trade deadline tomorrow.

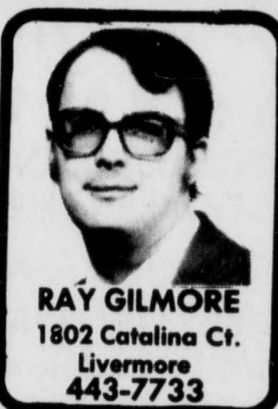

If he's traded to a team he likes, Lindsay may not want to come to the US, but San Jose still hopes to have him aboard within a few weeks.

Tickets for today's game are $3 for adults and $1.50 for fans under 18 years of age. Once inside, fans will have an additional chance to aid youth soccer.

The Al Caffodi girls league will be operating concessions at either end of the field, with girls from Pleasanton and Livermore in the under-12 and under-14 age groups taking part.

Gaels lose thriller

Dons' Wicks throws one-hit shutout

Amador Valley's Rob Wicks picked up where he left off last year, hurling a one-hitter as the defending East Bay Athletic League champion Dons topped visiting Newark, 2-0, Friday in Pleasanton.

In the Dons' initial pre-season varsity baseball contest, Wicks allowed only a seeing-eye single by Jerry Smith in the hole at shortstop in the fourth inning to take the win.

Wicks fanned ten and didn't surrender a single base on balls, as the Dons scored twice in the third to post the win.

Losing hurler Bret Watson walked Bret Bevilacqua to lead off the inning, while Mike Connolly sacrificed him to second with a bunt.

George Ellard then laid down a surprise bunt, beating it out for a base hit to put runners at first and third. Gene Stanley then laced a single to right field that scored Bevilacqua, while Bob Koopman stroked a two-out single to center, scoring Ellard with the final run.

ALAMEDA — The fact that the ancient Alameda High's present building will be handed over to the demolition squad come June 30 has the Hornet baseball squad playing for old times' sake.

Alameda scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to erase a 2-0

Dublin lead en route to a 3-2 win over the Gaels Friday at Lincoln Park here.

The Gaels, who remained winless in pre-season varsity baseball play, committed two key errors in the inning to let the Hornets steal the win.

"We had a letdown in the area of the game we feel we're best in: defense," said Dublin coach Tom Mullican after the contest.

Dublin hurler Bob Richardson had pitched five innings of no-run, three hit ball before walking winning pitcher Brian Castelli to lead off the sixth.

Leadoff batter Rick Hernandez pooped out, but Brad Castelli followed with a single to left to put runners on first and second.

The hit chased Richardson from the mound and Mullican called upon Gary Rader to end the threat.

After both runners advanced on a passed ball, Rader got Cliff Farina to chop a slow grounder up the middle. Shortstop Sean Mays made a nice try to get to the ball, but couldn't come up with a throw, bobbling the ball away.

After Rader intentionally walked cleanup hitter Pete Michaleto to load the bases, Martin Dickinson hit a grounder to third baseman Mike Hardy, who threw home to force out Brad Castelli.

With two out, catcher Tony Scheibler tried to pick Farina off third base, but the ball slipped off Hardy's glove into left field and Farina scored. John Belmares followed with the game-winning hit, a solid single to right field.

The Gaels scored in the first inning, as leadoff man Mark Way, who was hit by an incredible three pitches on the day out of six thrown by Hornet hurlers Rusty Quintana and Castelli, was beamed. Two outs later, Richardson stroked a run-scoring double.

In the sixth Richardson walked, went to second on Mays' single, and scored on a base hit by Mike Hardy. The Gaels eventually loaded the bases in the inning but failed to score when John Downing popped out and Dan Pearson fanned.

FREMONT — Chuck Cary slugged a home run and double to lead California High's powerful baseball team to a 14-4 win over Washington here Friday in a non-league baseball contest.

Roger Hurlow also stood out for the Grizzlies, driving in three runs with a single and sacrifice fly.

Cal scored eight times in the second inning after trailing briefly, 3-2, after the first stanza, to romp to the easy triumph.

John Born led the losers with a perfect two-for-two performance from the plate and an RBI.

FREMONT — Livermore fell behind early and could never get untracked, as the Cowboys dropped a 10-1 decision to host American High here Friday afternoon in their non-league baseball season opener.

The 'Pokes surrendered six unearned runs in the fourth inning, as losing hurler Jeff Perry was knocked from the mound. Although Perry gave up nine runs, only one was earned.

The 'Pokes sliced just two singles on the day, from Charlie Bockover and Cary Dean.

The Eagles took advantage of everything the 'Pokes could give them, collecting seven base hits, six of them singles, and just one extra-base hit, a double. In addition Livermore hit two fly balls that should have been caught.

HAYWARD — Foothill High's baseball team concluded a week they had rather forget Friday in dropping a 10-3 decision to hosting Sunset High in non-league baseball action.

It was the Falcons' third loss in the week, giving up five runs in the first inning to fall behind early.

Sophomore catcher Jon Fernandez' three-run homer in the first inning was the big blow, going over the left-field fence for the winners.

Pat Driver, the losing pitcher, helped his cause at the plate by stroking two base hits to lead the Falcons. Dan Wilkes walloped a double and two-run triple to continue his hot hitting for the losers.

Rick Rosenbach pitched three innings of relief ball for the Falcons but had not much better luck than Driver in stopping Sunset.

Q. My wife and I have owned an apartment in Hayward for a number of years. We have been advised that it would be a better investment to sell the apartment and buy several single family homes. Do you feel this is wise? M.S. Hayward

A. Depends on the investment objectives or goals you have set for yourself. If you want monthly income from your investment with moderate appreciation, then I would suggest you hold onto your multiple units, (apartment). If you are financially able and can afford a negative cash flow, and want high appreciation, then I recommend single family homes for investment. However, the management headaches associated with apartments seem to be less than with homes, this could be important to you if time is a factor.

Q. I have just bought a home from an 83 year old lady. I paid her $35,000 for it, although both she and I believe the value to be at least $45,000. We discussed the higher value, but she insisted that she did not want to pay any capital gains on the sale, which she avoids due to her age. Since the sale she has now moved to the North to be with her relatives. I have been told that I may have a potential problem, if she should die soon. Is it possible that her relatives might claim that she was senile at the time of the sale, and take steps to recover the property or any profits I may make from the sale of the home? E.M. Livermore

A. And they say real estate brokers get all the good buys. You might very well have a problem, since you never know about relatives. From a third party stand point it could look very suspicious that some little old lady has been taken advantage of. Here is how I would have handled the seller as to what I believe the fair market to be, I would have her signature on the letter, with a witness signature also. Second, I would have the sales agreement signed in the presence of a witness. Be sure that the witness has no relation to you, or interest in the property, now or in the future. I wonder what the IRS would say about this apparent gift.

Q. My husband and I recently sold our home that we have lived in for 5 years. We were told that in order to sell the home, a termite report was necessary, and we would be required to pay for any work noted by a termite company. My husband took very good care of our home, but the termite company said that the bathroom floor needed to be replaced at a cost to us of several hundred dollars. We were told that we had no alternative but to pay for the work. My husband did not feel the floor needed to be replaced, does the law really require we pay for this work? P.H. Pleasanton

A. A structural Pest Control Report, more commonly referred to as a termite report, is not required by law in California. However, most lending institutions and all VA and FHA loans do require such a report as a condition of the loan. Also in the case of VA and FHA do require that the work completed before escrow can close. If you felt the report by the termite company was incorrect you could have requested a reinspection by the company or ask a second company for an inspection and after comparing the reports and finding a disparity between the two go back to the first company and discuss the second report. If you still can't get satisfaction then you can contact the State Board to intervene. Remember that your buyer must be shown copies of all reports.

Visitors to a polite land

Japan Visitors

"Land of The Bobbing Heads" is how Bob and Marlene Stearns characterize the Japanese people after their recent trip to Japan. The Stearns, who manage the Vintage Realty office in Pleasanton, spent five weeks on Japan's main island with Marlene's parents. Her parents are attached to the arm forces and are stationed in Japan.

"Bobbing Heads" refers to the Japanese custom of bowing, and emphasizes the extreme courtesy of the people that so impressed the Stearns. They were astonished by the seeming lack of poverty and of the extreme cleanliness of the people and property. As an example, the Stearns noted, that the cab drivers between fares would wash and wax their cabs.

Visitors tell of Rhodesia

The Zimbabwe African National Union, dedicated to the principle of black majority rule for Rhodesia, would nationalize all lands and businesses upon accession to power.

The subject of the Rhodesian situation, where the white dominated regime of Ian Smith rules over a largely black country, was discussed in an Amador Valley High School class Friday by T. J. Kangai, secretary of the Zanu district of North America, and A.M. Chidoda, a Zanu representative based in Montreal, Canada.

The two basically are in the United States to inform the American public of the Zimbabwe position.

That position, while peaceful and democratic in origin, appears socialist - leftist in procedure.

Kangai signaled the underlying feeling of Africans opposed to further colonial rule by stating, "Europeans are so few in our country (Rhodesia). They cannot even make a cup of tea for themselves. They have to have an African do it for them."

He said the Zimbabwe movement is "fighting for peace and to establish a government representative of all our people."

Chidoda, who wore a tan military-style tunic with a Zimbabwe button on it like Kangai, said

Bitter on Smith regime

"What we are trying to avoid in Zimbabwe is another Idi Amin." Amin is the president-dictator in Uganda who has carried out blood purges of all those suspected of opposing him.

Chidoda said the union was helping to unite the East African countries of Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania in an economic common market.

ket. But he felt that Amin's thrust was directed to breaking up this East African "community."

The two had no civil words for Smith, adding that any countries dealing with Smith's government were "enemies" of the Zimbabwe movement.

Asked by a student, "Who are your friends?" Kangai responded, "Those who are fighting for Zimbabwe against the Ian Smith regime."

"When you go through Salisbury (the capital city of Rhodesia), it looks just like San Francisco. There is Woolworth's, Shell, a Butler's Bank (English banking firm), and many other American firms."

Such businesses would be taken over by the Zimbabwe government, Kangai explained, and a system of land redistribution instituted. Whites in Rhodesia reportedly own a vast majority of all lands.

"Their lands would be shared equally," Kangai added, saying a black majority government would hold control over the lands.

"We are fighting to establish a people's representative government, not a majority government," Kangai further contended. "We are guided by self-determination," retorted Chidoda.

"Zimbabwe" literally means a big house made of stones, explained Kangai. Rhodesia would presumably be renamed this should the movement be successful. The black African reference for the country of South Africa, which is also in the midst of a black majority struggle, is "Azania."

On other questions, Chidoda said the Zimbabwe movement would not accept Cuban military assistance. He feels the capitalist system is not feasible for his country, but believes they should work with and accept economic aid from other countries "on an equal footing."

Prospective parents

Childbirth course offered

LIVERMORE — Prospective parents may now learn basic baby care and Lamaze techniques in one course, thanks to a new adult education class to be given through both the Livermore and San Ramon Adult Education Departments.

Entitled "Childbirth Preparation," the eight-week course will be taught at the Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospital in San Ramon on Wednesday evenings starting March 23; and at Valley Memorial Hospital, Livermore, Thursday evenings beginning March 24. Hours are 7 - 10 p.m.

Co-sponsored by the adult education departments and VMH, the course will cover education in pregnancy, labor, delivery and basic baby care. Lamaze techniques of concentration, relaxation and breathing will be taught as tools of coping with contractions of labor.

Husband and wife or mother - to - be and coach are encouraged to take the class, according to Shirley Easley, supervisor of obstetrics at VMH. A coach is needed to learn the breathing exercises and relaxation techniques in order to assist the mother in labor.

Those interested in taking the class should wait to begin until the mother - to - be is in her sixth or seventh month of pregnancy, Mrs.

Easley said. New classes will start every eight weeks.

Registration for both classes is limited to 10 couples. The regular adult school fee of $4 is the only charge. Early registration is suggested.

In Livermore, registration begins March 14 at the adult education office, 3044 East Ave., Mondays through Thursdays 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 - 10 p.m. On Fridays the hours are 8 - 4.

The first series in San Ramon is already filled. To register for the next session, which begins May 18, call the adult education office at 837-1382.

"Childbirth Preparation" is the result of a concerted effort of the VMH maternity department, local Lamaze instructors, Valley obstetricians and nurse practitioners. Certified Lamaze teachers and hospital maternity nurses will be the instructors. According to the teachers, the series will give parents - to - be a well-rounded education in the entire birth process. With increased understanding, mothers and fathers can better cope with the whole parenting experience, they feel.

In addition to Lamaze techniques, the course will cover anatomy and physiology, stages of labor, delivery and care after birth. Techniques of breast and bottle feeding, how to make a formula and a bath demonstration will also be included.

One of the sessions will feature a tour of the VMH maternity department. Among the films to be shown will be "The Amazing Newborn," a highly regarded film which was recently donated to the maternity department by the Livermore Soroptomists.

Homelike birth center opening

Thinking of having a baby at home?

As an option which provides close - by medical help, Mt. Diablo Hospital Medical Center in Oakland is opening an "Alternative Birth Center" featuring a homelike atmosphere for the mother in labor and an invitation for family and friends to join in.

The center is a suite of rooms within the Obstetrics and Gynecology Department of the hospital. It's furnished like a home, with a bed, couch, beanbag chairs and even a TV set.

The parents - to - be and their friends and relatives may bring along small personal items to add to the atmosphere. "The idea," according to Marilyn Jones, clinical coordinator, "is to make the baby's birth comfortable, warm and as informal as possible."

Prospective parents must have taken prepared childbirth classes such as LaMaze or Bradley.

The new family is usually able to go home within six hours after birth.

For information on how to use the center, call the hospital's OB/GYN department at 682-8200. Reservations should be made well in advance of the due date because the family, doctor and hospital must agree on a plan for the delivery and care of the newborn.

Adult school's signups Monday

LIVERMORE — Register for Livermore Adult School spring courses beginning Monday, March 14. Signups for the more than 100 classes will be 9 - 4:30 and 6:30 - 9:30 Monday through Thursday; 9 - 4:30 thereafter until classes are filled.

Classes begin Monday, March 21, and continue for 11 weeks through June 10.

Latest additions to the catalogue are Know Your California Wildflowers; Rugmaking; Macrame; Bicycle Safety and Repair; Prepared Parenting; Childbirth Preparation; Home Gardening; and Know Your Valley Birds.

In addition, there are about 100 other varied classes available to the adult community. The majority are evening courses, says Adult School principal Jim McCarty, although a few daytime classes are maintained at various locations throughout the community.

Since some classes are very popular - for example, Business Machines, Ceramics, Jewelry Making, Leather Design, Watercolors, Tole Painting, Guitar, Foreign Foods Cooking and others - registration is urged as early as possible.

Supervisors mull septic tank battle

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Of some 4,200 septic tanks in the county tallied in the 1970 census, only about 1,000 were in the Valley.

But virtually all future requests for private sewage disposal systems will come from these 500 square miles, county supervisors have been told.

In the first of what promises to be a series of staff presentations, the board of supervisors last week began their probe into possible new regulations to stave off what critics, notably the City of Livermore, have called a "proliferation of septic tanks" in the suburban-rural Valley.

County planning director Bill Fraley and health agency representative Gerald Winn will set their departments to an even more indepth search for data that may frame a new county position. The two will bring their findings back to the board later.

Predicting future requests "is strictly a guess," they said, since existing parcels may be divided in the future thus increasing the demand for septic tanks.

Various estimates peg future sites at between 400 and 1,000.

In the past two years, more than 400 owners have submitted applications for the systems. About 100 have been installed to date.

Twenty applicants whose permits were denied by the county health department appealed to the board of supervisors. "About 16" were approved by the board, according to the report.

Under current county ordinances, septic tank permits are routinely denied to anyone whose property is within 200 feet of an existing sewer line.

But while the rule was adopted by the board several years ago to cut back on the number of tanks, it has had minimum effect, argues supervisor Valerie Raymond.

"IRRATIONAL"

Those outside the 200-foot boundary who can pass health department criteria for distance from wells and percolation — the rate at which the leachate seeps through the ground — automatically are granted permits.

"My question, really, is 'What are we accomplishing?' when only one out of 100 has to come before the board," she said. "I find it very irrational and inequitable."

She wants the board to sents another problem.

Even if an owner is within the 200-foot radius and can connect without major costs, the cities must deny the application because of the ban.

Others face prohibitive

While Lanferman refers to an Environmental Protection Agency study of large, neighborhood septic tank collectives maintained by a public agency, the RWQCB representative said they pose "some of our biggest headaches."

The regional board, too, is looking at a revision of its current septic tank policy. But representative Steve Morris said community septic tank systems "in the main have been failures."

They usually are run by homeowners' associations, he said.

Current state law requires some level of municipal government or state sanctioned service district assume responsibility for the community systems, if not directly run them.

THE END?

Do problems with water quality and the various local, state and federal agencies mean an end to septic tanks?

Berkeley and Oakland have their share of the systems, points out supervisor Fred Cooper. But since the leachate falls into underground streams that dump into the San Francisco Bay, no one complains.

However, when the water spills through the Niles Cone to the Fremont - Newark - Union City water supply, official heads turn...

And when the state sits in the middle of its worst drought and water becomes the liquid gold of the 20th century, inefficient sewage systems that endanger that water come into question.

But neither Raymond nor Cooper are willing to concede an end to septic tanks.

Cooper, for one, wants to know what percentage of effluent seeping to the underground supply comes from private systems on those estimated 1,000 Valley septic tanks, and how much comes from spraying by the Livermore and Pleasanton sewer treatment plants.

Septic tanks are not yet, at least, the dinosaurs of modern plumbing.

"But our policy is still to be reluctant in granting them," adds supervisor Joseph Bort.

— by Ron Rodriguez

Septic tanks won't clear Zone 7

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Zone 7 will not become part of the septic tank approval process.

A request by Zone 7 chairman George Lydiksen to add the flood control and water district to the stream of departments which must approve an application met unanimous defeat before county supervisors last week.

Because it is charged with protecting the Valley's underground water supply, the board for years has argued to be made part of the process.

Last week Lydiksen formally submitted the request.

"I'm not ready to put another government agency in the approval process," said supervisor Joseph Bort. "We've got too many government bodies already."

His motion was seconded by Valley representative Valerie Raymond and passed unanimously without comment.

But Bort and the board agreed to forward all appeals to the board of supervisors through Zone 7 for comment.

Because the zone is "in the position of having a water supply source that could sustain the area for several years even if the worst drought that we are now experiencing statewide were to continue," Lydiksen wanted his board to become part of the process.

In a brief letter to the board of supervisors, Lydiksen points to the zone's "groundwater quality monitoring program." The zone is out to determine any "natural or artificial sources of pollutants that may impact water quality of the groundwater."

look at the Valley area - by area and develop data on underground water quality. Where the water already is high in nitrates, or a concentration of septic tanks will push the level up, private systems might be banned, she suggested.

On the other hand, if there are not that many developable lots and connection to a sewer line is prohibitive, perhaps the 200-foot dictum could be washed away.

The state's Regional Water Quality Control Board's current ban on sewer hookups in the Valley because of pollution of the underground water supply down stream in Fremont pre-costs when a paved road lies between their property and the public sewer line.

HIT AND MISS

Septic tanks are generally "poorly designed and constructed on a rather hit-and-miss basis," water district director Paul Lanferman told the board.

And programs for maintenance "aren't very good."

Zone 7 has petitioned the board to become a part of the sewer tank application process. Charged with maintaining underground water quality, the zone wants to become part of the approval process.

Their request was denied.

Pleasanton staff cuts water use

PLEASANTON — The city has instituted several water conservation measures to do its part during the drought.

The measures, approved by the city council, include minimum watering on all parks and landscaped areas with browning of some turf areas acceptable; temporarily eliminate flow - testing of fire hydrants and reduce the blowing-off of hydrants to a bare minimum consistent with health and safety; and elimination or minimization of water use in fire department training programs.

"In general, all employees are requested to be aware and attempt to conserve water wherever possible," says a memo from Assistant City Manager Alan Campbell to the city council.

Fair board supports parade

Leeann McFadden, who headed a Bicentennial-based group in organizing a parade at County Fair time last year, is expected to marshal some of the same committee members towards staging a parade again this June.

At the monthly County Fair Association Board of Directors meeting earlier this week, directors approved participation in the parade to the extent of $2,500 for prizes in the judged portion. The Pleasanton City Council has said it would support a parade only in the area of police and fire coverage.

In other business, the Fair's five-year program was referred by the board to the buildings and grounds committee.

The annual chamber of commerce presidents and managers dinner has been tentatively set for Tuesday, March 29 at the Fairgrounds cafeteria.

Mayors dump bill as anti-litter move

Alameda County Bureau

While a consortium of local county mayors turned thumbs down to a measure supporting mandatory non-returnable bottles, State Senator John Nejedly (R-Walnut Creek) may introduce a more sweeping anti-litter bill.

The mandatory deposit "bottle bill" lost support from the Alameda County Mayors Conference last week on a slim 6-5 vote. The new position overturns a similarly close vote last year that supported identical legislation.

Support from the Mayors Conference, a pet project of Livermore Mayor Helen Tirsell, was defeated when bottle bill proponent Berkeley missed the meeting, and the City of Fremont reversed last year's stand.

A vote of support passed 7-6 last year.

The bill by State Senator Omar Rains (D-Santa Barbara) slipped through the Senate's Natural Resources Committee last week on a 5-4 vote.

Nejedly, chairman of the committee, voted against the bill, instead suggesting his own broader litter control bill.

• Tax manufacturers of items that produce litter — plastic cups, cigarettes, chewing gum, non-refillable bottles, newspapers, magazines, tires and other items.

Details of the proposed legislation have not yet been worked out, but an estimated $40 million would be generated annually and used to cleanup litter.

Rains' "bottle bill," which would mandate a deposit on all bottles and cans in the state, has drawn the ire of industry in both Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

Heavy industry and union pressure in southern Alameda County brought opposition from Alameda, Fremont, Newark, San Leandro, Union City and Oakland in the Mayors Conference vote.

Livermore, Pleasanton, Hayward, Albany and Emeryville supported the bill.

Mayor Tirsell said she was "not too surprised" by the outcome. "When I realized Berkeley wasn't going to be here and heard Fremont had changed its vote, I knew we'd lost it," she said.

An Anheuser-Busch spokesman, producers of the number one selling Budweiser Beer, said Rains' bill would tack 15-cents on the price of a six-pack.

His firm would have to invest some $900 million to adapt its new Fairfield plant to accept returnable bottles and cans, he said, and "the consumer would bear the brunt of the increased production costs."

A similar non-returnable "bottle bill" has been in effect in Oregon for the past few years. Other legislation has been bantered about by states across the country.

Forever green

The water shortage has become so acute that motorists driving Interstate 680 have been criticizing the city of Pleasanton for watering pastures continually. They are watered continually, all right, but those sprinklers are fed by the treated effluent from the city's sewage treatment plant and the city put up a sign setting motorists straight the other day. In fact, that's the city's effluent disposal program, so it better not stop.

Las Positas link to city

Engineer proposes vehicular span

PLEASANTON — The city should forget about constructing a pedestrian overcrossing at Las Positas Boulevard and go for a two lane vehicular crossing instead, Director of Engineering Services Don Sooby has recommended to the city council.

It will cost the city $1 million more to go for the vehicular crossing, but since it's a big project anyway, it's worth trying for financing the larger sum so that the west side of the city is tied to Pleasanton with a vehicle crossing, said Sooby.

Two year old cost estimate for the vehicle overcrossing is $1.5 million. That doesn't include property acquisition for the right of way.

A pedestrian crossing which can't be expanded would cost $500,000. A pedestrian crossing which could be expanded to a vehicle crossing later would cost $800,000. Those estimates also are two years old.

The city council will be asked to authorize a change in the description of the project tomorrow night.

It's part of the city's application for Federal Aid Urban program for traffic improvements.

The city already has $109,000 in FAU funds set aside for the Las Positas overcrossing and wants to qualify for another $169,000 in FAU funds for the project, bringing the total to $278,000.

Other FAU projects on the city's list include $41,500 for installation of a signal light on the corner of First and Neal Streets and $164,500 for construction of improvements and traffic signals at the intersection of Valley Avenue and Santa Rita Road.

The city requested $124,000 for the Valley Avenue work earlier, but that amount won't cover the whole project, said Sooby.

'Homegrown' band heads talent show April 9

LIVERMORE — Bob Stenseth is bringing his own version of vaudeville to this city.

He's arranging an evening of blues, folk and barbershop music, with a little bit of tarot mystery and dazzling jewelry display thrown in for good luck April 9 at the Veterans Memorial Hall, 5th and So. L streets.

Stenseth, 27, has been in Livermore since 1966 and has been dabbling in entertainment production since then.

"I want to get the talent of the community out and give them an excuse to try," he told The Times. He'll present an array of local talent at several shows in the future. One unusual aspect of each show will be the end of the regular billing of acts. He plans to invite anyone to get up on the stage and "do their own thing," once they've called him at 455-8755 to make arrangements.

"Homegrown", a Livermore band Stenseth says "was raised on the blues," will lead off the April 9 show, with Forrest Frick playing lead singer and rhythm guitar, Steve Hathorn on bass, Eric Raeburn on sax and Jim McSharry on drums.

Rick Fowler, also of Livermore, will let his fingers dance on the guitar strings while he entertains the audience with his folk songs. He has appeared in several local shows.

Jerry DeCou of Pleasanton, who "sounds a bit like John Denver and will sing some of his songs," follows on the show. Stenseth said DeCou is known for taking his guitar into local parks and entertaining people there as his personal form of entertainment.

The harmony of barbershop singing will ring through the Vets Building when the Golden Statesmen of Livermore belt out their numbers.

John Bird, locally known as The Flying Chef, will "explore the mysteries of tarot cards," giving a lecture - demonstration of the philosophy and mechanics of the art of tarot reading.

Big Sky Turquoise and Silver jewelry will also be on display, with many items for sale.

Tickets for adults are $3.00 in advance and $4.00 at the door. Youngsters 14 and under, as well as senior citizens, will pay $2.00 in advance and $2.50 at the door.

Tickets are available at the Odyssey Box Office, 443-2155. Tickets will be available in other places, soon to be announced.

Stenseth said 25 per cent of the proceeds will go to Livermore Soccer League and Senior Baseball League, 10 per cent will go to Livermore Area Recreation and Park District, and the rest will be divided among the locals on the bill and himself.

Stenseth, in between stints as a hospital orderly, has been active with other shows. Two years ago he put on a show in Pleasanton with John Lee Hooker, an Oakland Blues singer who has written some 50 albums, and Charley Musslewhite, a noted harmonica player from Chicago.

Another show he produced, at the Sacramento State Fairgrounds, involved headliners such as country rock stars Emmy Lou Harris and Country Joe McDonald.

With posters now going up for the April 9 production, Stenseth is already setting his sights on a May 6 production in the same Vets hall.

Attorney sees voting by mail as cost saver

PLEASANTON The city will be voting by mail for the first time in history if a proposal going to the city council tomorrow is approved.

City Attorney Ken Scheidig has done research which shows the city can hold its special tax override election by mail. It would cost half as much as the traditional "trooping to the polls" and probably would result in a much greater degree of participation by voters.

The city has called an election to decide the fate of a proposed 29 cent tax override which would pay for addition of nine fire and 10 police personnel to the city staff. It would guarantee three - person complements at each fire station and more officers on police patrol, if approved.

No sample ballots would be mailed to voters. They would receive the actual ballot and pro and con arguments in the mail and have a certain number of days to return the marked ballots.

Because the override is the only issue on the ballot, the election does not have to be held during one of the three prescribed dates this year — in March, May 31, or November.

Research Goes Foreign More and more research by U.S. companies is being performed overseas. The Conference Board estimates such spending at $1.3 billion in 1975. Nearly two-thirds of overseas research and development is performed in three countries: Canada, Great Britain and West Germany, with the last now conducting about 30 per cent of all research performed by foreign affiliates, up from 22 per cent a decade ago.

Housing demands stir industry

By BOB NOREK
Homes Editor

BERKELEY — Today's and tomorrow's housing demand is and will be a "staggering challenge" to builders and U.S. agencies.

That's what members of the Associated Building Industry of Northern California (ABI) Eastern Division were told by James Price of HUD.

Price, regional director of HUD, and Fred Craig, loan guarantee officer of the VA, were guest speakers at the division's meeting here.

Both speakers briefed their Spenger's Fish Grott audience on their respective agencies work to provide housing for qualified home buyers.

Price said the continuing increase in the cost of housing is a "very serious problem" that America must soon face. The veteran government official added that the "right of every American to own a new house" may now longer exist.

Price, answering the question of Concord builder Ken Hofmann, said he did not know when the housing demand/cost factor bubble would burst. "You tell me," he commented.

The HUD director, however, did say there are "new clear signals" that the Carter administration would look into the housing crisis and begin to take affirmative action.

Price said HUD is considering the 40-year mortgage and the alternative home financing programs such as the graduated mortgage payment.

The speaker added there is a positive sign that HUD mortgage limits would be increased to around $60,000. (A majority of new housing in the East Bay Area, because of cost, does not qualify for HUD loans.)

Price said HUD is looking at the co-insurance program where mortgage companies would partially share the risk and participate in the revenue of HUD financed housing.

The director also discussed the other duties of HUD, which he said went beyond mortgage insurance. Price said he also administers $125,000,000 in block community development projects in his region.

Hup is involved in financing multiple-family housing projects and subsidizes a rental program for low-income families, Price explained.

Saying that his job can be very "frustrating," Price had words praise for his staff and former ABI executive director Bill Leonard.

Price urged builders to give more input to his agency. He said that HUD wishes to work with the industry in helping to solve the housing crisis.

Craig, a Concord resident, reported that VA has had a busy two years and expects to have his work load increase. The VA official said his office has a large backlog of work.
